

Statement of Editorial and Publication Policies

Statement of Editorial and Publication Policies

1. Manuscript submissions (or substantially the same material/data) should not have been published or simultaneously submitted elsewhere.*
2. Manuscripts should conform to the standard rules of English grammar and style. Manuscripts that are substandard in this regard will be returned without review. It is strongly recommended that non-native English speakers ask a native English-speaking colleague or language-editing service to check the quality of the English language before submitting the manuscript. Note that it is plagiarism to use another's text, recycle it by slightly adapting it (changing a word or number here or there to fit your circumstances), and then present this as if it were your own words.
3. Submitted articles should largely contain previously unreported material. The overlap of contents between related papers should be minimal and normally confined to the introductory/review sections.
4. Authors should provide information at submission on any paper closely related to the submitted paper.
5. When the submitted manuscript is multi-authored, one individual must be identified as the corresponding author. It will be assumed that all the authors have been involved in the work, have approved the manuscript, and have agreed to its submission.
6. The Publisher carries responsibility for typesetting, page lay-out and figure sizing for all accepted papers.
7. Authors are responsible for reading and correcting page proofs of their articles. Proof corrections are normally restricted to typesetting and printing errors. Major changes cannot be undertaken at the proof stage.
8. Authors are responsible for obtaining the necessary permissions from the copyright holder to reproduce previously published figures, tables and text passages in their articles (in both print and electronic formats) and to include evidence that such permission has been granted when submitting their papers (see also Publishing Ethics tab).

*Translations

Manuscripts that were originally published in a language other than English may be considered for submission provided that the following conditions are met:

- the non-English journal in which original publication took place is a small or niche journal with a very limited readership
- the non-English journal is not aimed at the same audience as Environmental Monitoring and Assessment
- the paper is significant and of interest to an international audience
- the paper has been translated into standard, grammatically correct English
- full disclosure of the history of the paper is given at submission and as a footnote to the title on the opening page of the manuscript
- the author has obtained and supplied, with the submission, the written permission from the copyright holder to publish in Environmental Monitoring and Assessment

The Managing Editor's judgment is final with regard to suitability of submissions.

If you have further questions, please contact the Publishing Editor for guidance before submission.

Page Charges

There are no page charges to publish in Environmental Monitoring and Assessment.
